Provider Profile

Information provided by the provider describing their agency:

For nearly four decades, REM has been a pioneer in the provision of services and programs to individuals with developmental disabilities. The company began service delivery in the state of Minnesota in 1967, when it opened its first community based home for individuals who were leaving the State's developmental centers. Based on the vision and commitment of Robert E. Miller, for whom the company is named, each REM program is designed to meet the needs of the individual, coordinating his or her strengths with the supports available in the community.

In May of 2003, REM Connecticut Community Services, Inc. and its REM affiliates joined The MENTOR Network. Headquartered in Boston, Massachusetts, the Network consists of a group of human service providers with particular expertise in designing, implementing and overseeing a range of community-based programs for a variety of vulnerable populations.

REM Connecticut Community Services, Inc. is committed to developing innovative, person-centered solutions for populations that face significant challenges. REM's holistic approach to both the planning and the delivery of services enables individuals and families to be successful, both in their own lives and within the community at large. The company believes that all individuals, children and adults alike, have a right to build a life for themselves in the community, regardless of the complexity of their conditions, the severity of their disabilities, or the challenges of their behavior. REM's core mission is to create a system of care which will allow program participants to receive options for living in the community, supports for attaining independence, and opportunities to grow and develop personal connections in natural settings. A home and community setting are, thus, the principal settings in which services are delivered. REM vocational currently has services two areas Wallingford and Rocky Hill. Supports include group supported employment and day service options. Other services include: Community Training Homes, Early Intervention, and Community Living Arrangements

REM Connecticut Community Services program is designed to serve children, adolescents and adults with developmental disabilities. Program participants carry a diagnosis of developmental disabilities and require intermittent, limited, extensive, or pervasive levels of support, services, and supervision, depending upon the strengths and needs they present to program staff. Typically, participants will have limitations in one or more of the following adaptive areas:
